Conference Summary

This one-day conference will provide current information and resources to assist you in working through challenging issues in disability management. Orianne Donig-Harder will provide the audience with tools on how to support a respectful workplace and discuss non-medical barriers to return to work.

Following our morning break, Grant Mitchell will be talking about where the workplace accommodation ends, and performance management begins.

After a delicious lunch, Keith Elliott will talk about keeping pace with AI and how it relates to disability management before we end the day with Winnipeg Stand-up Comedian, Emmanuel Lomuro.

Who Should Attend?

- case managers and rehabilitation consultants

Orianne Donig-Harder

Orianne Donig-Harder is Senior Manager of Employment and Workplace Solutions at the Canadian Mental Health Association Manitoba and Winnipeg. She provides outreach, education, and workplace consultation to employers in Manitoba to develop plans to increase the mental health of their organizations and employees. Orianne has worked in mental health and supported employment since 2014 and is passionate about the role that employment plays in recovery. Orianne's goal is to promote psychologically healthy workplaces that include diversity and accessibility for everyone.

Keith Elliott

Keith Elliott is a globally recognized investigator and educator known for his dynamic speaking style. Licensed since 1991, he has delivered hundreds of seminars worldwide on investigations, surveillance, cyber intelligence, and workplace inquiries. A Certified Fraud Examiner, Certified International Investigator, and Master Investigator, he also holds an Honours degree in Law and Security Administration. With decades of experience across fraud, cyber scams, insurance and healthcare investigations, and cryptocurrency schemes, he has recovered funds internationally and testified in major Canadian court cases. In this changing world, Keith's training has evolved to address how AI is being used both to detect and perpetrate fraud". His work was recently featured in the W5 episode "The Crypto Bros."

Grant Mitchell

Grant Mitchell was called to the bar in 1978, and spent his entire career with Taylor McCaffrey, becoming a leading labour, employment, and human rights lawyer and building an 11 lawyer department before retiring in 2016. He represented major employers across Manitoba, taught labour relations at the University of Manitoba for 22 years and delivered hundreds of seminars nationwide. A longtime community and professional leader who served on many boards and in several presidencies, he received the Manitoba Bar Association's Distinguished Service Award in 2023.

Emmanuel Lomuro

Emmanuel Lomuro is a stand-up comedian born in Cairo who moved to Winnipeg as a young child. His style has been described as high energy with the ability to relate to many different types of people. Emmanuel draws his humor from his culture, childhood and life experiences. A regular at Rumor's Comedy Club, Emmanuel has performed at the Winnipeg Comedy Festival and also seen on the The Comedy Battle Royale. His joy on stage is contagious and certain to leave you laughing.
